Dear Sir:

This filing is responsive to the Notice of Incomplete Reply (Nonprovisional): Filing Date Granted dated March 2, 2005 ("Notice"), and in further reply to the Notice to File Missing Parts of Nonprovisional Application (Filing Date Granted) dated August 10, 2004.

As indicated in the attached copy of the Notice, all requirements to the Notice to File Missing Parts have been met, except for the payment of certain fees, namely, a $65 late oath or declaration surcharge and an $880 additional claim fee.

Referring to the Notice, Applicant hereby instructs the Commissioner to deduct the full amount of the fees now due ($945) from the deposit account of RANDALL J. KNUTH, P.C. - Account Number 501157, pursuant to the charge authorization granted to the Commissioner by Applicant in the original filing papers of the above-identified application. Since the fees indicated in the Notice arose out of the original disclosure filing, the charge authorization that formed part of the original disclosure filing applies to such fees.

Applicant has enclosed herewith a copy of the transmittal form on record with the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office that accompanied the original filing of the above-identified application. As noted on the form, Applicant authorized the Commissioner to charge any additional fees which may be required (and credit any overpayments) to the deposit account of RANDALL J. KNUTH, P.C. - Account Number 501157.

Regarding implementation of the deposit account provisions found in 37 C.F.R. §1.25, the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure (MPEP) states as follows in relevant part:

"Many applications contain broad language authorizing any additional fees which might have been due to be charged to a deposit account. The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office will interpret such broad authorizations to include authorization to charge to a deposit account fees set forth in 37 CFR 1.16, and 1.17." (MPEP §509.01).

Applicant submits that the charge authorization found in the original disclosure filing constitutes submission of the full payment applicable to the fees now due as of the date the authorization to charge fees was effective, i.e., the filing date of the application. Applicant notes that the required fees were assessed under 37 CFR §1.16 and therefore fall within the scope of the charge authorization, according to the practice of the Patent Office articulated above.

Applicant submits that this charge authorization is at least applicable to any fees that were assessable at the time of filing -- such as the additional claim fees and declaration surcharge -- even though the additional claim fees were not formally requested by the Office until later when the English translation of the specification was filed. The fees now due are no more than the fees assessable at the time of the original application filing, and, since the fees pertain to filings costs present at the time of filing, the payment of such fees is covered by the charge authorization found in the original application transmittal. It is believed that current implementation of this charge authorization to the fees now due carries with it the benefit of the date on which such authorization was originally made (i.e., application filing date); accordingly, payment at this time by a charge against the deposit account should be considered timely.

Applicant recognizes that the Office was unable to determine the number of claims submitted until the English translation of the specification was submitted in the timely filing dated January 13, 2005, which was accompanied by a preliminary amendment that provided, inter alia, amendments to the claims. Entry of the preliminary amendment resulted in a reduction in the overall assessable claim fee, e.g., due to the deletion of various multiple dependency relationships. An unexecuted Declaration was also filed with the original application transmittal.

Applicant believes that the original charge authorization continued in force as a standing general authorization following the filing date -- at least in regard to the fees under 37 CFR §1.16 present at the time of filing -- and therefore applies to the fees now due, even though the determination of claim fees was not made until later when the English translation was filed. Applicant believes that the charge authorization applies to any fees that arose out of the original application filing, such as the additional claim fees and declaration surcharge now due.

Since the charge authorization accompanied the original application transmittal, Applicant considers that the transmittal form (and charge authorization therein) constitute a timely de facto submission of payment instructions applicable to the fees specified in the Notice.

It appears to Applicant that the time period for replying to the Notice to File Missing Parts dated August 10, 2004 has expired (even with extensions). However, Applicant believes that the instructions contained herein to charge the outstanding fees to the deposit account simply restate the same payment instructions that were timely made in the original application transmittal and are applicable to the fees now due. Accordingly, Applicant believes that the original payment instructions (i.e., charge authorization) were viable during the pendency of the reply period to the Notice to File Missing Parts and should now be put into effect by the Patent Office in a manner considered timely and fully responsive to the fee request.

If the Patent Office has any questions or comments that would advance prosecution of this case, the Office is invited to call the undersigned at 260/484-4526.

Respectfully Submitted,
